McKinzie*DREAM HOME MAKER

Tiffany McKinzie understands that a home is more than just the sum of its parts—it's about emotion, history, experiences, love, and comfort. "I take my job very seriously to understand my clients' passions, desires, and tastes," says McKinzie. "From the ground up, the design process can be deeply emotional. My desire is that my work would inspire my clients and represent the very best part of them." For McKinzie, communication is key. "I discuss everything with my clients—whether they're empty nesters or newlyweds, if they have pets, have a passion for cooking, and the ages of their children—in order for me to truly understand and translate the way they live into the design," she says.

McKinzie has been an active member of the design community since 2002, and her work can be found in more than 150 residential renovation and new construction projects in neighborhoods around the Dallas-Fort Worth area and across the country. She is known for her keen eye for detail, efficiency, initiative, and leadership, and her charitable efforts in the community set her apart in the industry.
